LOCAL WHOLESALE TRADE LOW TEMPERATURE A CHECK TO

BUSINESS ACTIVITY.

Prices Steady and Firm. Except on Hog Products-Grain Markets Are Active and Stronger.

In the week ended Saturday the volume of trade was greatly curtailed on account of the cold weather. There is no reason that trade should be dull aside from this, as retail merchants have their stocks well reduced, their bills for 1902 well paid up and have a surplus to begin a new year on, say the traveling salesmen. In prices there were but few changes. There were deindications are for still lower prices, as the price of hogs is tumbling and receipts are large. Wholesale grocers had a quiet week, probably due to weather conditions, and in prices there were no changes calling mention. Trade with the druggists was fair. Prices since the first of have ruled unusually steady. disposing of the surplus after the holidays, consequently demand is light. On Commission row some business has been transactbut it has been too cold to ship perishable freight except in heated cars. There has been considerable done in this line. Choice apples are very firm, but seem in ample supply. Irish and sweet potatoes are steady and stock in hand seems large. Present prices are likely to prevail, except seed potatoes. Poultry is quite active. Receipts are limited, consequently prices, which usually decline after the holidays, are well maintained. Eggs, if fresh, still command good prices, but when the quanlity of eggs now held at home and in the East is considered, the market is in an unfavorable condition. Butter seems in large supply, but when tested a good deal of it is of inferior quality, and this enables the holding of firm prices. Leather has been quite active, with prices firm and steady. Traveling salesmen who came in on Friday and yesterday report the outlook bright for a good trade when weather conditions are

HOW DOLLS ARE MADE.

The Process Is Rather an Intricate One Requiring Care. Woman's Home Companion.

Of whatever material the doll is madewax, porcelain or composition-the processes by which its beauty is evolved are practically the same. First, the head. In France and other European countries machinery is little used. The hot liquid is ladeled into the lead or plaster molds. Over here the workman, holding the mold in one hand, turns a faucet, and allows the steaming white mixture to rush into the cavity. Quickly reversing the mold over an opening in the tank, he grasps and fills another. and another, reversing each one to allow all the mixture which does not immediately adhere to the sides of the mold to run back into the tank. Another workman seizes the mold as soon as it is cool enough to handle, and with two movements of his hands separates the leaden sides and pulls out the dolls' head. It is not a lovely object in this stage, nor ten minutes later, even, when the polisher has trimmed off the ragged seams and the dyer has dipped it in flesh-colored paint. If it is to be a wax doll its comptexion resembles a freshly boiled lobster. This is because the wax itself is white. Some of us found that out for ourselves when we surreptitiously sampled the cheeks of sister's idol in heu of forbidden chewing gum, not dreaming that the streaks would show. A girl or youth next paints the eyebrows, lips and cheeks, and a man puts in the eyes. This last is a simple operation, unless the eyes are to open and shut, when the balancing of the lead becomes a matter of some skill. Nothing now remains but to put on the beautiful flaxen wig. which is tastefully curled and arranged by an expert workman. No mere clod is intrusted with the doll's coiffure, you may assure yourself.

The best doll-bodies are stuffed with shavings of cork; hair, excelsior, cotton and sawdust are also used. The arms and legs are molded exactly as the heads, and are sewed to their places by deft-The great majority of dolls are sent to market without being clothed at all, but doll-dress making is a very important branch of toy manufacture.

UNDERTONE IN WHEAT, WHICH CLOSES AT A GAIN.

orn and Oats Also Show a Fractional Advance-Mixed Changes Recorded in Provisions.

CHICAGO, Jan. 10 .- Dullness prevailed in all markets on the Board of Trade to-day and wheat closed steady, with May %c higher. Corn and oats also were up 1/4c. Provisions closed from a shade higher to

Wheat ruled quiet but there was a firm undertone the greater part of the day, although the market early experienced a little easiness on favorable weather for the movement. The news was rather favorable to the bull side and there was some covering by shorts and more or less buying for the long account. Reports of heavy rains in Argentina were the main strengthening factors, though firm Liverpool cables had some effect at the start. The market was very narrow and there was little change in prices. May opened unchanged to 1/8c lower, at 761/8/0761/4c, and ranged between 76%c and 76%676%c, closing %c higher, at 76%c. Clearances of wheat and flour were equal to 594,000 bu. Primary receipts were 606,400 bu, against 551,700 a year ago. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts 376 cars, which, with local receipts of fiftyone cars, none of contract grade, made a total of 427 cars, against 352 last week and Corn was dull and fluctuations in prices were confined within an extremely narrow range The weather continued favorable for the movement and the local crowd seemed disposed to sell, but offerings were well taken. A good cash demand was reported from the seaboard, which caused a slight rally after an easy opening due to after selling between 43%@43%c and 44c.

Oats ruled dull and a trifle easier, due light, and confined largely to local scalpers. There was little change in prices and May closed %c higher at 34%c, after ranging between 34%@34%c and 34%c. Receipts were 193 cars.

Provisions were irregular and the trading was light, the feature being the buying of May ribs and the selling of May lard by a local packer. PROGRESS OF INVENTION. New Device for Use in Putting Up

Pay Envelopes.

Washington Post. In putting up the wages in envelopes at the end of the week in a large industrial establishment the method usually pursued is to make reference to a book containing tables designed to meet all the possible combinations of figures which might arise in computing the amount due each employe. In the office of an establishment where the hours and salary of the employes are liable to differ the operation of computing the various amounts due to each man is a tedious one, and unless some labor-saving device method was resorted to much of a clerk's time would be spent in this work.

The latest method of dealing with this proposition is by the means of a machine, which tells the amount instantly without the least calculation on the part of the clerk, and avoids many errors which he would be likely to fall into while going over a column of printed figures. There are a pair of handles on each side, the pair on one side duplicating the functions of that on the other, and being so placed simply for the convenience of permitting the operation of the machine with either hand, as may be convenient. One of these handles revolves a cylinder containing the various wages paid per hour, and the other the number of hours of work. These being turned until the proper figures are revealed in two windows, the total amount due the employe appears in a third window. When the desired amount has been ascertained there is a spring which holds the cylinder in place until such time as it is desired to release it. One would imagine that there could be no improvement in a printed table prepared for the purpose, but those who have had experience in this work know how easily it is to take the wrong figure when there is such a number of them before the eye. find the right combination is also considerable, while with such a machine as de-scribed above the result is given accurately with the turn of the wrist. When the result has been arrived at there are no other figures to embarrass the clerks except those

Hogs--Receipts, 6,000; shipments, 2,000. The receipts of hogs this week show only a slight change compared with last week, but a decrease of over 3,000 compared with the same week a year ago and 3,500 compared with the corre- 66.60 sponding week two years ago. Thus far this year the receipts are 4,000 smaller than the same period last year. For the week ending yesterday the leading local packers bought a total of 18,464, against 20,991 the preceding week and 23,750 the same week a year ago. During the same period the shipments were 13,927, against sponding week a year ago. The quality of cur-rent offerings has been as good as the average represented here for some time past and the average weight has been satisfactory. The week opened with a slight reaction in prices, but immediately there was an upturn in the market, and at the high time, which was on Thursday, prices were in the highest position they have been for over two months. The principal factor hat advanced values was the requirements from outside sources. Local packers naturally were reluctant in following the advance, and later in the week, with an increase in the receipts, they succeeded in breaking prices. At the ex-treme close of the week the average was right around loc lower than the high time, but almost that much higher than the close of last week. The relative position in prices of light hogs to those of heavy has been well maintained and, in fact, there is a little closer range in prices at the close of the week than at the opening. The extreme price of the week was $6.85 and the lowest top price $6.55, while at the close it was $6.70. Fully as many hogs arrived to-day as a week ago and over 1,000 more than a year ago. Together with the fresh receipts nearly 1,000 were left in the pens yesterday, which made the supply on sale to-day a little above the average for Saturday. This, together with unfavorable reports from other places. caused a weaker market at the start to-day and sales were made anywhere from 5c to 10 lower than yesterday. As a rule, however, there was probably not to exceed 5c change compared with yesterday's closing prices. After the first round it appeared that there would not be more than enough hogs to meet the requirements of packers and shippers, and naturally a little more strength developed in the market. Subsequent sales for the most part were at almost steady prices compared with the low time yesterday, but as a rule dealers con-sidered the market to-day 5c lower than yesterday's average. A good clearance was made in good season and the close was firm. Sales ranged from $6.10 to $6.70, and the bulk of the supply sold at $6.25@6.50. Quotations: Good to choice medium to heavy $6.45@6.7 Common to fair light weights..... 6.00@6.20 Inferior to best pigs..... Sheep-Receipts, 250; shipments small. The week's receipts of sheep and lambs have been comparatively liberal, showing a gain of about 900 over last week, 300 over the same week a year ago and over 1,000 compared with the coryear there is a decrease of about 300 compared with the same period last year. Notwithstanding the increase in receipts here, there was a sources, but shippers have purchased a large percentage of the supplies. Competition was strong enough at all times to enable sellers to get sat-isfactory prices, and, in fact, in a general way, the market was stronger this week than last. Occasionally higher prices were paid, but this was largely on account of a better quality represented. As high as $6 was paid for lambs, and fancy sheep sold as high as $4, but through-out the week $5.50 was practically the top for lambs and $3.50 for sheep. The receipts to-day were a little larger than usual at this time in the week, but there was a continued good demand and the trading was active at steady prices compared with yesterday. Lambs sold as high as $5.75 and other sales ranged from $4 to $5.60. The top price reported for sheep was $3.75, and other sales were at $3@3.60. Quotations: Good to choice lambs ... ROTTEN ROW STORIES.

Moving Incidents of Love and Ro-

Tit-Bits.

"Oh, yes, it's a pleasant enough life," said a handsome and stalwart constable, whose duty it is to patrol Rotten Row on horseback during the season, ready at any moment to race to the rescue of beauty or blue blood in danger; "but it's rather an anxious one, and becomes a bit monot-"No! I haven't so far had the luck to save a lovely heiress from a tragic fate and to be rewarded by her hand and fortune: but I haven't given up hopes. Still, I've kept my eyes open, and have seen a few romantic incidents of a kind which rarely get into the papers. "You see that pretty girl who has just ridden past in company with the white-haired man who looks old enough to be her grandfather. Well, they were riding here one morning last season, just as you see them now, and I was noticing them and speculating who they were and what relation the beautiful young girl was to the grizzled old man. "I watched the young lady scanning the faces along the railings, and all at once I saw her start, turn pale, and reel in the saddle as though she would fall from her horse. Quick as lightning a handsome young fellow had jumped the railings and was at her side; but she had recovered herself, and, with the saddest and sweetest smile I ever saw, bowed her thanks "It was a trivial incident enough, but behind it was a tragedy, as I heard later would-be rescuer were. A few days earlier they had been engaged lovers, devotedly attached to each other, but the girl's father refused to sanction the match and even refused the young man admittance to his house. In despair he volunteered for the war in South Africa, and his name appeared in the list of killed at Mayersfontein. A year later the broken-hearted girl yielded to the pressure put on her by her father and married an immensely wealthy man about forty years older than herselfthe man you have just seen riding with

to her aid-whom she had mourned as dead. He had been very seriously wounded, but had recovered, and after fighting again was invalided home, where the first "There was a still more beautiful girl who used to ride here every morning last season and always had an escort of worshiping young men. One day her mare, a flery chestnut, got the bit between her teeth and bolted. In a second one of the young men, mounted on a magnificent bay. flashed out from the small crowd which was following her, and, digging his spurs into his horse, raced madly after her. Every moment I expected the girl would lose her seat, as she was swaying as if in a faint, but by splendid horsemanship her pursuer gained on her foot by foot, and racing alongside put his arm round her and lifted her bodily from the saddle-the neat-2.00@3.00 est thing I ever saw in my life. Well, that young lady may still be seen in the Row most mornings, but she has only one companion, and I daresay you guess who he is. Talking about runaway matches reminds me of an incident that happened a few years ago. There was a good-looking. wealthy young widow who used to ride every day in the Row and always without an escort. One day something startled her mare and off she bolted with the widow

> That lady rides occasionally in the Row now, but she is no longer a widow, and the handsome young fellow who rides with her could tell you why. At times I see things which I cannot understand and which may or may not be romantic. For instance, a few weeks ago I saw an aristocratic young lady rein in her horse and enter into conversation with a very seedy, but rather distinguished-looking, young fellow at the railings. I noticed that she glanced nervously round several times as if in fear of being recognized, and before parting from the young man slipped some coins from her purse into his two together.

The same thing has happened twice since within my knowledge, and although I do not know, I rather fancy from the likeness between the pair that the young man may be the lady's brother, who is probaply in disgrace and low water, and that she meets and helps him in this way. But I could tell you quite a lot of similar stories if I had time. However, you have heard enough to see that there's plenty of romance in Rotten Row for a man who
